

Iris Dina Gunnarsdottir

My work and performance comments on identity in a modern world where most people take for granted that they do not have to define their gender role to anyone or that they have never felt restricted because of these role society gives us. How would they, if they have not encountered these questions? My work starts this conversation.

Edit: 24.01.2019