As we live we also learn, and we then impart what we have learnt through our own experiences onto other, whether it be to enlighten and educate others, or just so we can talk about our own stories. My current work is a combination of both of these reasons. As I am aspiring illustrator, I have thought hard about the lessons I have learnt and the lessons I think are important to give to others, so I have combined my love of illustrating and storytelling to create a broad range of Hand-painted, Narrative, Illustrations, which tells a story about life.
