The Great Margin: Contextualising Evidence

The items in this table demonstrate the evolution of our project, and demonstrate how our underlying pedagogy for the curation of inclusive writing culture can be adapted across contexts.

| Explaining The Dare to Write? Library This video further demonstrates Dare to Write? Library the context of children's writing workshops. The emphasis is on fun and the use of notebooks. The video was shared with writing curators in Knowledge Exchange activities as part of our producers scheme. The Dare to Write? This video demonstrates Dare to Write? Library (a toolkit and innovative workshop model for facilitators supporting young writers). Dare to Write? informed the development of the Writer's Cycle. This video is one of a series of videos and case studies that aimed to map the writing environment in South West England. The pedagogy used by Tanvir demonstrates the importance of material practices in creative writing. The video is featured in the Date to Write? Atlas and the pedagogy informed the development of the Writers Cycle. This page displays the Storytown Dare to Write? Atlas (It demonstrates a prior example of how the Writer's Cycle was applied as curatorial practice. It also demonstrates our findings relating to the importance of Social Actor Networks. Writing for All Writen Responses Writing for All Writen Responses This video documents responses from participants who attended the launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to Jul 2 | |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| children's writing workshops. The emphasis is on fun and the use of notebooks. The video was shared with writing curators in Knowledge Exchange activities as part of our producers scheme. The Dare to Write? Library Teaser Video This video demonstrates Dare to Write? Library (a toolkit and innovative workshop model for facilitators supporting young writers). Dare to Write? informed the development of the Writer's Cycle. This video is one of a series of videos and case studies that aimed to map the writing environment in South West England. The pedagogy used by Tanvir demonstrates the importance of material practices in creative writing. The video is featured in the Date to Write? Atlas and the pedagogy informed the development of the Writers Cycle. This page displays the Storytown Dare to Write? Atlas (It demonstrates a prior example of how the Writer's Cycle was applied as curatorial practice. It also demonstrates our findings relating to the importance of Social Actor Networks. Writing for All Writing for All Writing for All Video Writing for All Video This video documents responses from participants who attended the launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to | |
| Library Teaser Video Dare to Write? informed the development of the Writer's Cycle. This video is one of a series of videos and case studies that aimed to map the writing environment in South West England. The pedagogy used by Tanvir demonstrates the importance of material practices in creative writing. The video is featured in the Date to Write? Atlas and the pedagogy informed the development of the Writers Cycle. This page displays the Storytown Dare to Write? Atlas (It demonstrates a prior example of how the Writer's Cycle was applied as curatorial practice. It also demonstrates our findings relating to the importance of Social Actor Networks. Writing for All Written Responses This page displays written responses and feedback from people who attended the Writing for All launch. These responses informed further development of the Writer's Cycle. This video documents responses from participants who attended the launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to | 018 |
| Early Video Case Study map the writing environment in South West England. The pedagogy used by Tanvir demonstrates the importance of material practices in creative writing. The video is featured in the Date to Write? Atlas and the pedagogy informed the development of the Writers Cycle. This page displays the Storytown Dare to Write? Atlas (It demonstrates a prior example of how the Writer's Cycle was applied as curatorial practice. It also demonstrates our findings relating to the importance of Social Actor Networks. Writing for All Written Responses This page displays written responses and feedback from people who attended the Writing for All launch. These responses informed further development of the Writer's Cycle. This video documents responses from participants who attended the launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to | 018 |
| This page displays the Storytown Dare to Write? Atlas (It demonstrates a prior example of how the Writer's Cycle was applied as curatorial practice. It also demonstrates our findings relating to the importance of Social Actor Networks. Writing for All Written Responses This page displays written responses and feedback from people who attended the Writing for All launch. These responses informed further development of the Writer's Cycle. This video documents responses from participants who attended the launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to | 2018 |
| writing for All Written Responses attended the Writing for All launch. These responses informed further development of the Writer's Cycle. This video documents responses from participants who attended the launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to | 2018 |
| Writing for All Video launch of the Writing for All Programme. (Writing for All was our call to | 019 |
| Responses action and marked the launch of the development phase for The Great Margin) | 019 |
| This page was used to communicate updates to the project throughout 2020. The page demonstrates our innovative methodology and the wide range of social-actor networks that we engaged with. | 2020 |
| This is a public facing document that presents the themes of the Writer's Cycle as 'communicable knowledge'. The Writer's Cycle is the pedagogy that informs The Great Margin project. It was further refined at the end of the project, in the light of our emerging findings. | 020 |
| Paper Nations Impact Reports Public facing Impact Reports for 2016-2018 and 2018-2020, published on the Paper Nations website. | |